- B) Make a precise of the following passage and give a suitable title. 8

Did you ever see horses taken to water? They rush into some muddy pool, tranquil lake or noble river and drink of it to their hearts' content. On quenching their thirst with the water of a river, they stamp in it until the water is polluted. This is the price they pay for their refreshing draught, But what then does the noble river do? She floats away the mud and gets ready to supply fresh and pure water to the same or other thirsty creatures, so must you also do. If there is a fountain of charity in your heart, it will constantly overflow whether those who drink of it, are thankful or not. He is a senseless husband man who expects crop soon after sowing. Our life is a period of sowing and scattering. We shall be rewarded hereafter.
