

Duration: 3 hours

Marks: 100 marks

P.S: (1) Attempt any four questions.

(2) All questions carry equal marks.

- (1) What is Hypothesis in Legal Research? What are the characteristics of a useful or workable hypothesis?
- (2) What is a Legal Research Report? What is its importance and enumerate the steps involved in Legal Research Report.
- (3) Critically evaluate the objective of Legal Education with reference to India.
- (4) "Legal reasoning refers to the process of thinking to come to the decision relating to Law". Discuss with reference to Induction and Deduction method in Legal Research.
- (5) "A research problem must arise in the mind of a Researcher just as a plant springs up from seed". Discuss the advantages of right selection of Research Problem.
- (6) Examine the significance of Clinical Legal Education in Indian context.
- (7) Write short notes on any two of the following:
 - (a) Socio-legal research in India
 - (b) Examination reforms in legal education
 - (c) Case study method in legal research.

(3 Hours)

QP Code : 27160

[Total Marks : 100]

P.S: (1) Attempt any four questions.

(2) All questions carry equal marks.

1. Examine the significance of Clinical Legal Education in Indian context.
2. Critically evaluate the merits and demerits of Lecture method of teaching.
3. Discuss the significance of Research problem in legal research.
4. Examine the advantages of Empirical Research in Legal Research.
5. Discuss the significance of social values, morality and logic in legal research.
6. What are the various process in conducting legal research? Discuss the significance and limitation of each process.
7. Write short notes on any two of the following:
 - a. Computerized research in law
 - b. Examination reforms in Indian legal education.
 - c. Induction and deduction.
